Emergency Operations Planning in a COVID-19 World

Wednesday, January 27 at Noon CT
Members: 39, Nonmembers: $99, 1 CE

In this program, the speaker will look at the issue of Emergency Preparedness and talk about some of the new scenarios to be considered now that COVID-19 has changed our "normal" in health care.

The more things change, the more they remain the same! COVID-19 has changed health care as we once knew it, but the need for emergency preparedness remains consistent. In this program, Steve Wilder, BA, CHSP, STS will look at the issue of Emergency Preparedness and talk about some of the new scenarios to be considered, as well as changes to the ones we have dealt with under different circumstances for years.

Learning Objectives:

- Identify critical "lessons learned" from health care facilities that have been through critical internal and external disaster scenarios
- Identify potential vulnerabilities that may present when COVID restrictions start to ease
- Discuss the risk of increased acts of workplace violence as prolonged lockdowns continue to take place

Presenter: Steve Wilder
